FOREWORD

Praise be to Allah's presence, SWT for His grace, so that the Abstract on ICOLLATE can be completed on time. This book is to complement an international seminar held on 20 - 21 October 2017. This book contains an abstract collection of all tasteful speakers from various universities spread across the country. This seminar is themed Literacy, Linguistics and Language Education which is divided into two subtema namely Literacy and Linguistics and Literacy in Language Education. The subtheme Literacy and Linguistics consists of 10 subsubtems and Literacy in Language Education has 11 subsubtems. With this booklet it is expected that the participants will be easier to follow the theme and subtema that will be chosen in parallel class presentation.

Hopefully the seminar held by Universitas Negeri Yogyakarta in every two years can provide valuable input for the development of linguistics and language teaching in Indonesia.

Committee,

Abstract

This study aims to describe the readability aspect of German language written discourse on electronic media on textual and contextual meanings based on grammatical aspect and lexic aspects. The data object is a German word, phrase, and sentence. The source is derived from the writings contained in the electronic media DeutscheWelle. Data were analyzed using textual and contextual discourse analysis. Textual analysis is divided into two types: grammatical and lexical aspects. Contextual analysis is done on written discourse to understand the context. The results showed that on the grammatical aspects of German language written discourse has elements that are characterized by three kinds of reference, substitution, ellipsis. As for the lexical aspects of the meaning field on German written discourse has six kinds of repetition, synonymy, collocation, hyponimi, antonym, and equivalence.

Keywords: textual and contextual written discourse on german

It is shared among us that literacy in its broad sense is something certain for the advancement of the human life today and in the future. Meanwhile, literacy is never separated from the problem of language. That is why the culture of literacy must always be fostered, especially through education.

In response to this, this second International Conference and Linguistics and Language Teaching is held. It is expected that this conference enables the cultivation of the insights of literacy, linguistics, and language teaching from various perspectives up to the praxis. Therefore, in this seminar the experts who have been discussing different topics related to the three items mentioned before to gain recognition among the community. Participants are also invited to develop a synergy.
